Castleisland Town its parish, district and natural hinterland should be left in the one area as it already is for upcoming local elections in 2009. There is no point what so ever in splitting areas that are clearly defined by their very geography. This mistake has already been made once with the new general election boundaries to make it again would be devastating for local communities. The Castleisland Community District includes Castleisland, Cordal, Brosna, Knocknagoshel.

All these areas go to the same school (Secondary), Churches, play in the parish league and are in the one team for championship football, Please take note of the term of reference in chapter three. There is a strong feeling locally on this matter as can be seen from the Kerryman Newspaper (enclosed) 05/03/08
